WHY READ?

Some people read because - - -

Reading brightens dull, lonesome days.
Reading hastens the clock as with wings.
Reading reveals a world of beauty.
Reading can make us "as happy as kings."

And other people read because - - -

Reading helps you fix the plumbing.
Reading helps you mix a pudding.
If you wish to learn to knit,
Reading will show just how to do it.

Still others read because - - -

Reading provides sympathetic companionship.
Reading gives courage to face problems.
Reading provides strength to overcome obstacles.
Reading draws the far corners of the globe close in human understanding and tolerance.
Reading helps counteract the misery, the hate, the horror of a world at war.

Fish don't read, monkeys don't read, morons don't read, savages in the jungle don't read; but all men of any intelligence read books, magazines, newspapers, comics, or billboards. In these days of turmoil, reading is still an enriching, unchanging, satisfying experience.

Board of Education . . .

IT IS THROUGH THE EFFORTS of the Board of Education that Geneva High School was ready and prepared for the sudden crisis which arose on December 7th, 1941. Thanks to the foresight of the members of the board, the program which the high school is now pursuing was set up and the machinery was set running for our all out war effort. The entire war program of Geneva High School is under the leadership of the Board of Education.

The members of the Board, acting as representatives of the taxpayers of Geneva have shown a keen appreciation of the problems youth must face in the present crisis. They have kept this in mind in setting up the war time program for Geneva High School. In fact, the members of the Board of Education are serving in that capacity only because they do have interests for the welfare of young people.

The job of being a member of the Board of Education is a hard one. Long hours and stiff work make up the schedule that must be followed by the board. It is also often a thankless job with little or no recognition for the work that has been accomplished. However, the members of the Board of Education may feel proud of the job they have done in starting Geneva High School out on the war-time program. It is a difficult task to change from a peacetime schedule to a wartime schedule without any previous notice or warning.

Yet the Board of Education changed the policy or curriculum of Geneva High School so effectively that there could be no doubt as to its success. With the faculty and students following the precedent of the Board of Education in changing the way of school life, the present program seems assured of success.

The members of Geneva High School, the senior class in particular, thank you for the leadership and inspiration that you have given to us during these difficult times.

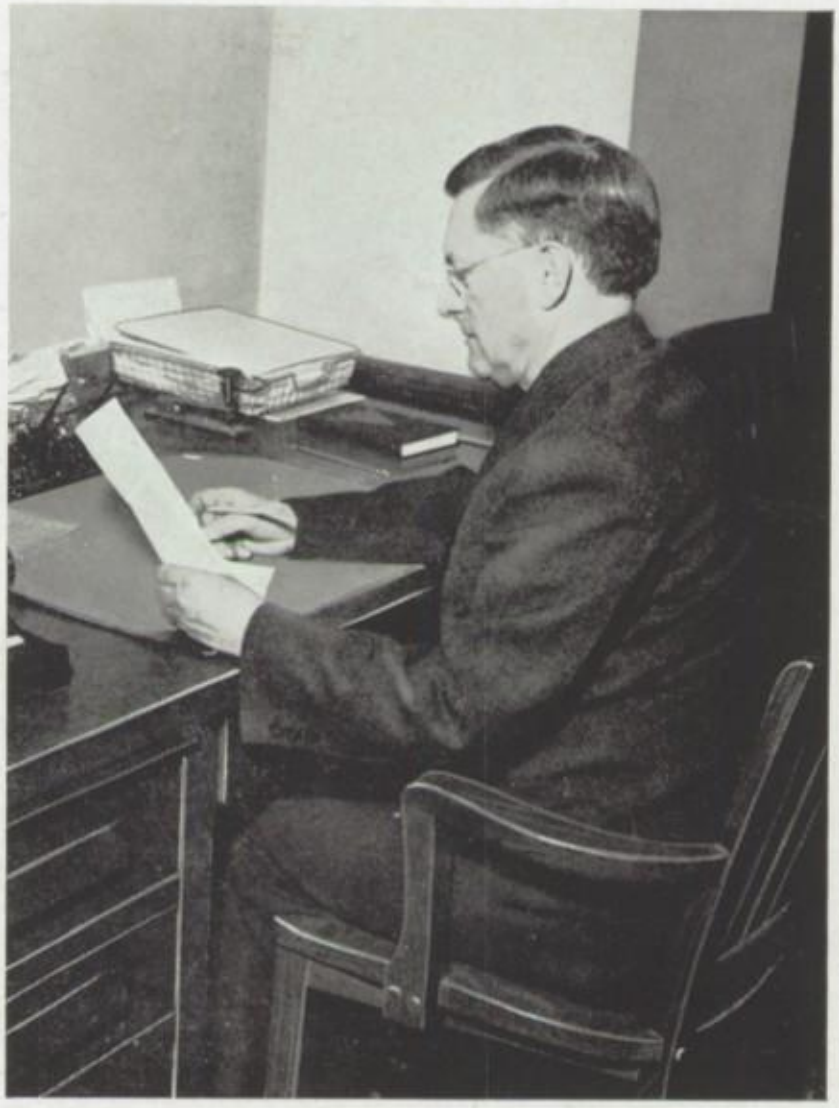
THE EDITOR.

MY DEAR YOUNG FRIENDS:—The opportunity to send each of you a personal greeting has been extended to me by the editor. It is something which I appreciate, and, as I think of it, this courtesy is typical of those members of the senior class with whom I have had personal contact.

I shall remember the Class of 1943 for leadership, for loyalty and helpful services. You have carried on in spite of many and varied demands upon your time.

You face the future, knowing that life will not be easy. May you go ahead with confidence, realizing that those possessions which bring the greatest satisfaction need never be scarce. There will be no rationing of Honor, or of Loyalty, or of Love, or of Hope. Good Luck to you all!

W. LYNN HOUSEMANN, M.A.
Superintendent of Schools.



To The Class of 1943:

It is with no cheap flattery that I greet you as one of the finest senior classes Geneva High School has ever had. You have reached your senior year only to find yourselves surrounded by the most terrifying conditions ever faced by a graduating class. Yet the very chaos challenges you to give your best efforts to its solution. At least seven of your number have offered themselves and more will soon follow them. From an experience of nearly four years with you, I have no fear that any of you will fail to measure up to your opportunities. May all of you share the happiness of an early and just peace.

LOUIS M. COLLINS, B.A.
Principal Geneva High School.

Greetings and Best Wishes to the Class of 1943:

May I speak of my admiration for this class which has carried on nobly during one of the most trying years experienced by any senior class? The demands made upon you seniors by the war, the added duties and responsibilities, the accelerated schedule were all taken in stride, like good soldiers, and you still maintained a high scholastic record.

Your extra curricular activities have been outstanding. The social event of all social events, the Senior Ball, was a grand success.

I have enjoyed working with your class. I wish you the best of luck as you leave our school to step out into a world at war.

ARTHUR J. McCANN, B.S.
Vice-Principal Geneva High School.

SINCE THE GREAT CONFLICT began in December, 1941, Geneva High School has stepped forward to take its responsibility in the war effort of the community with such initiative and energy that we can feel much pride as we renew briefly the work that has been done. Students, administrators, faculty—all have had their special contributions to make.

An activity which seemed to take first importance was to prepare ourselves to take care of injured in emergencies, or to care for the sick in our homes when nurses would be hard to get. Classes in first aid and home nursing were set up in which, during the first few months of last year about 125 of our students and faculty were enrolled. The entire first aid class program of the city was set up by a member of the high school faculty and nine other members were instructors of these classes, faithfully bandaging, putting on splints, applying the tourniquet night after night throughout the spring time. At the same time our shop men were instructing volunteer ambulance drivers of the city. Nutrition classes, as well as classified first aid and home nursing, were conducted in the home economics department. Altogether our home economics teachers conducted five classes having an enrollment of one hundred and three, twenty-three of whom were G. H. S. girls.

This year our curricular changes have been entirely influenced by the war effort. We are accepting many of the suggestions of the state department of education, in fact, are one of the first schools of the state to organize a class in preflight training. We have a class in shop fundamentals for boys who are facing early induction and an extensive program in physical and health education. This latter program has been made particularly effective because of the cooperation received from the Y. M. C. A. which has made it possible for us to use both its gymnasium and its swimming pool. Company K cooperates with the High School by giving instruction in military drill to members of the High School Victory Corps.

About sixty G. H. S. students have taken courses this year at our local defense school to prepare them for taking their places at the benches of the local defense plants during the coming summer. Five of these are girls.

One of the biggest undertakings of the student body is the mobile canteen, sponsored by the high school and to be presented to the city. Designed by the men of the industrial arts department with the advice of homemaking teachers, built by the boys and instructors of shop classes, equipped and sponsored by a committee appointed by the student council, financed by Junior Red Cross, the F. F. A., several Hi-Y groups, and by interested friends, the canteen as a war project is a fine example of co-operative service. Along with this we are pleased to recognize the service done the government through the model airplane building. Approximately one hundred of such models have been built since December 7th, 1941.

Many other services rendered by our students and their teachers cover such a wide range of civilian defense activities as air raid and fire warden service, rationing, stamp and bond sales, salvage work, and farm work. At present one hundred thirty-five G. H. S. students own war savings bonds; $17,634.39 has been raised here through the sale of stamps and bonds; five students were awarded special honors for their work in the salvage program; while about fifty percent of our student body participated at some time or other in the fall farm work program. We are proud that this more difficult work was backed up by many faculty members not only with their inspiration but with much perspiration.

Last but not least, we are proud to call attention to Geneva High Schools' Roll of Honor—those whose names you can read in this annual. The greatest sacrifice and service has been theirs; of them all we are truly proud. Humbly, we admit that our actual service has fallen far short of what might have been. Earnestly we pledge ourselves to utilize the opportunities our school is offering to make us more efficient workers in our country's cause.

"It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

EVERY YOUNG MAN is needed for the successful conduct of this war. He must prepare himself to do his part with courage and skill. He must be prepared for all emergencies, learn to "give it as well as" take it and have confidence in his ability and superb physical conditions—the result of days and months of strenuous physical training.

Football at Geneva High School, as at many other schools, is one of the most popular sports. But football is more than an athletic diversion for our boys. Football is a counterpart of life. The traits required for success on the football field are the same as any man needs to make himself successful in whatever field of endeavor he enters after graduation. Fairness towards opponents, courage, the will to win, a constant striving to excell, attention to detail, and tireless application are among the points which are acquired both on the practice field and in a game. Football players learn to take hard knocks without whimpering and they are rewarded with a feeling of confidence in themselves.

Our Democracy needs more men with the traits which these boys have ingrained in them, not only now in times of stress but also when the lights have gone on again all over the world. Many of our boys are going to fight for our country and they will make a splendid record because of the things that they have learned on the playing fields. There will be many times when they are on the battle-field and in difficult positions after the war that the lessons of the football field will stand them in good stead. There is no substitute for courage and the driving will to win. These boys have it in abundance.

There is more to football than much hard work and some play. No one examining the records of the many football players who have worn their school colors upon the field recently and in the distant past can fail to be impressed with what is there revealed of useful service and achievement in the work of the world. We find throughout the United States and in foreign lands football men in places of responsibility, trust, leadership, and honor in private enterprise and public duty. They have gone forth to meet and master their destinies with added courage and all the traits exemplified on the football field. Such men help to form the stalwart strength of the nation. They are men who know how to fight the good fight. They are contributors to the spirit of true democracy; champions of the preservation of American institutions and the rights of free men imbedded in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, and the Bill of Rights.

Basketball, as an integral part of the physical education program, enters the picture prominently. Although devoid of the crashing bodily contact style as used in football, basketball does have sufficient bruising contacts to teach a boy courage. Courage under fire is one of where the action is so fast, stamps a boy as "All-American" or just an "also ran." And this ability is carried on into war. During World War I physical efficiency showed that a small number of enlisted men could pass only minimum requirements as to running, jumping, climbing, and throwing. Fighting men needed to be able to do all of these things and do them well, if they are to be efficient units in the army. All of these pre-requisites are adequately taught in the game of basketball through the so called "race horse" methods now employed.

Basketball and War! There is a close correlation between the two. If a boy can play a good game of basketball, he will be a great asset to our armed forces.

The hurdles of track are like the hurdles of life, for life now is a series of war hurdles. Training for track starts slowly and is increased gradually. Courage, obedience, nerve, and sacrifice are developed in competitions. In war, as in track, the man who wins the day is the one who can overcome obstacles, who can keep going against insurmountable odds.

Like any other sport, baseball makes a direct and practical contribution to the war by helping to develop and maintain a high degree of physical efficiency. The game calls for speed and endurance, quick thinking and split second decisions, and a high degree of coordination and teamwork.

The ability to act, calmly, exactly, and with easy coordination under nervous tension, is given to few; but from these few come not only the great golfers but the victorious pilots and bombardiers as well.

Former members who are now in the service invariably mention the great advantage they have over others who have had no previous experience in using the rifle.

The Rifle Club has as one of its objectives, the right way to use and care for the rifle. Members are instructed in the safe handling of all guns, the technique of sighting, aiming, and holding, the proper care as to cleaning and the nomenclature of the more important parts.

In actual shooting on the range, progressive standards of achievement have been set up by the National Rifle Association, of which the local club is a member.

WITH EVERY BRANCH of the government doing their part towards the war effort, Geneva High School's student council is also doing its part. Early last fall, a group of High School students, with the backing of Mr. Collins, decided that Geneva High School should adopt a school project in regard to the war; and in that way, the pupils would gain more credit for the "Victory Corps." Because of the fact that Geneva is in a war zone, and that there might be a need for a mobile canteen, these students submitted this idea to the student council as a school project.

After the council unanimously approved the project, plans were then started and committees were chosen. Arthur Legg was appointed chairman of finance; Don Pederson was chosen chairman of construction; Jean Hart was elected chairman of equipment; and Alan Davis was chosen to head the chassis committee. Eleanor Tressler, Kenneth Brownell, Gloria Lundberg, and Onnolee Greene were appointed to help the chairmen of the various committees.

With these plans laid out, the chairman and the co-chairman left for Ithaca to find and look over a ready-made mobile canteen. With this knowledge of how the unit worked, the students came back ready to go to work. The construction committee laid plans for making the canteen; the equipment committee went to different factories and bought articles that were essential for the canteen; the finance committee worked out ways of raising money for the unit; and the chassis committee went to various towns looking for a body of a truck, and different parts that would be needed for the canteen.

At intervals, the students meet and discuss the results of their work. So was found that more money was needed to cover the costs. After leaving this, the students took it upon themselves to lend a helping hand. Clubs, then sponsored dances and donated the money, the stunt night gave their proceeds to the cause, and dances were held to raise the money. Soon, enough money was raised.

Before long, the student council will be proud to say, "We helped." Surely, they deserve credit for adopting such a project to help the war effort.

THE ANNUAL SCHOOL OPERA is the best possible example of a co-operative school project. As soon as the opera for the year is chosen and try-outs are held to select the principals of the cast, the chorus gets into action to rehearse the numerous ensemble numbers and the orchestra begins its rehearsals for the accompaniment for the singers. As soon as the cast and chorus are reasonably familiar with the music, stage rehearsals for action are begun. Meanwhile, the Dramatics Department has been hard at work planning and making the costumes for the cast, and designing and painting the stage settings, a task which calls for the assistance of the Art Department and the Shop Department. The stage technicians must spend a great deal of time and labor in order to perfect the smooth operation of the stage set-up and the shifting of the scenery. The business side of the project is handled by yet another group of students who manage the advertising and the ticket selling. The Commercial Department with the help again of the Art Department, provide the programs. When the big night arrives, the ushers handle the crowds efficiently. The orchestra strikes up the overture and another High School Opera is under way.

What other activity of the school year offers to so many students an opportunity to contribute to the life of the school?

MUSIC has a very important part in the war effort. The United States government, ruthlessly eliminating all non-essentials, has encouraged the study of music as never before. Band instruments have the A-1-A priority rating, the same as bombing planes and tanks.

There are several reasons for encouraging music during war time. Music has the power to bolster courage on the fighting front, to increase the physical endurance of marching men and toiling workers, to prevent man's hysteria by means of song, and to raise morale generally. It also brings the element of beauty into even these ugly times.

High school students have entered music courses for the sake of the pleasure of making music for its cultural value, or because they wished to follow a career in music. Present conditions offer a new purpose—that of furthering the war effort. Every music student can now feel that he is making a definite contribution to this effort, whether he is working on the home front or in the armed forces.

After the war, when the world returns to normal activity, the musician will have a foundation in the most democratic of all the fine arts. Whether or not he is active in music, he can never forget what he has learned in music appreciation, and will be a member of the inner circle of those who enjoy music more because they know it.

WAR EDUCATION stresses physical fitness of which morale is an important part. Relaxation by recreation is a part of the War program both in the Armed forces and the U. S. Office of Education.

Dramatics is recommended as one of the best recreational activities. A play benefits both the audience and those working back of the curtain.

Besides this, all people connected with student play production learn the value of co-operation, leadership, management and responsibility.

THE NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY, founded in 1921, is an organization composed of 2300 chapters. There are chapters, with one exception, in every state in the Union, in Puerto Rico, in Hawaii, and in the Philippines.

The object of the Society is to create an enthusiasm for scholarship, to stimulate a desire to render service, to promote leadership, and to encourage development of character.

In the spring and in the fall members are selected by a council, consisting of the principal and four teachers appointed by the principal. This committee makes its selection from the upper third of the class. Membership is limited to fifteen per cent of the Senior Class and five per cent of the Junior Class.

Since election is based not only on scholarship but also on service, leadership and character, membership represents the highest honor the school can award.

THE GENEVA FUTURE FARMERS is an organization composed of boys studying vocational agriculture and is a member of the State and National Association of the Future Farmers of America.

The educational values to be derived from any student organization are determined by the amount of responsibility delegated to and assumed by the members. In this chapter all offices and committees are student elected and conducted under the guidance of the teacher of Agriculture as advisor. The regular business meetings are held every two weeks and special meetings are called as the occasion demands.

The educational purposes of this organization are:

1. To develop competent, aggressive, rural and agricultural leadership.
2. To strengthen the confidence of the members in themselves and their work.
3. To create more interest in the intelligent choice of farming occupations.
4. To create and nurture a love of country life.
5. To improve the rural home and its surroundings.
6. To encourage cooperative effort among the students.
7. To promote thrift among the students of vocational agriculture.
8. To promote and improve scholarship.
9. To encourage organized recreational activities among students of vocational agriculture.
10. To supplement the regular systematic instruction offered to students of vocational education in agriculture.

The local chapter recognizes and stimulates individual effort by the awarding of degrees. The first degree or "Green Hand" is awarded to every member as soon as he has a suitable project program underway. The second degree or "Young Farmer" is awarded one year later if the "Green Hand" has met the following requirements.

1. Earned and productively invested $25.00.
2. Shown his willingness to cooperate by participation in the chapter activities.
3. Demonstrated his ability to lead an open discussion from the floor or preside at a group meeting.

Outstanding boys may receive State and National degrees by meeting higher requirements.

Hi-Times

Jack Hartzell, Editor Miss Houston, Advisor

THE YEAR 1942-43 promised to be a successful one for the Geneva High School newspaper, when in October the first issue appeared and was subscribed by forty per cent of the students. Some high lights of that and succeeding issues were the swift-moving accounts of sports events, letters from boys in the service and reports on student activities in defense work.

Staff members worked together in preparing the fall and winter issues, which gave a good cross section of school affairs, class news, dramatics, musicals, as well as descriptions of personalities interesting to their classmates. Particularly the typing and printing staff contributed a great deal of time toward making the paper a success and are to be congratulated for their efforts.

Soon, however, it appeared that the staff members who were working outside of school had neither the time or the energy to put into an additional activity, and it became increasingly hard to complete an edition on time. Perhaps the Hi-Times is just another casualty of the war, although we hope the students' interest in their paper will continue to be as great as it has been for the past five years.

1943 Seneca Saga

Miss White, Advisor Ralph Springstead, Editor

IN PREPARING the 1943 Seneca Saga, the annual staff has planned a patriotic theme from cover to cover and has attempted to show Geneva High School's all out Victory effort. That effort, though small in comparison with other all out efforts being waged by peoples of foreign lands and by many Americans on the various battle fields of the world, is deemed large enough and important enough to warrant the space that has been given it in this annual.

In order to do this more space has been devoted to write-ups than previously and the type of write-ups, especially those concerning sports, has been changed considerably.

Hindered by many priorities and restrictions, the 1943 annual staff, ably assisted by the members of the senior class and by certain members of the faculty, working together with whole hearted cooperation, has published this 1943 senior annual, a credit, we sincerely hope, to the senior class and Geneva High School.

THE JUNIOR RED CROSS is an organization whose motto is "I serve." During war time members have an especially good opportunity to live up to the high ideals of service that have always motivated the work of the Red Cross. Today everyone is conscious of the needs of our boys who are in service. The students who have special talents use them in making articles to raise the morale of the sailors or add comfort to the lives of the soldiers. The art classes, for example, designed original menu covers to be used on the Christmas Day menus of the U. S. Navy; the homemaking classes made hot water bag covers and bed-side bags for the boys of the armed service who are in government hospitals; the boys in wood-working classes made model airplanes that required great nicety of workmanship.

The Junior Red Cross entered whole heartedly in the campaign to raise money which was expended unselfishly. Checks were sent to the Geneva Chapter to buy articles like gum, cards, stationery, toilet articles and the like for soldiers kits which are presented to each soldier when he goes overseas. The blind were not forgotten because the usual $10.00 yearly subscription for the Braille edition of the Readers Digest was taken from the Junior Red Cross treasury.

The sale of war stamps and bonds was sponsored by this organization because they believed that financial support is most important in our all-out effort for victory. So far Geneva High's Bond and Stamp sales total $17,634.39!

In each project undertaken by the Junior Red Cross the spirit of service has been a determining factor in achieving success. The sponsors of this organization feel that the members are not only participating in a manner appropriate to their experience and maturity but are preparing for greater opportunities in the service which lies ahead.
